40 NATURALIZED AT SUPERIOR COURT

The March term of Superior Court opened at Rumford on Tuesday of last week with Justice George L. Emery presiding. Following the opening ceremonies the grand jury went into session and on Wednesday afternoon returned five indictments, two of which were made public. Fred Leighton, alias Fred Lerhon, alias Maurice B. Davidson, of Canton was charged with breaking and entering at the house of Samuel Jones and larceny of goods belonging to Marcia L. Jones on Dec. 15, 1934. Joseph Sakalauskis of Rumford was charged with breaking, entering and larceny at Jerry's Market, March 1, taking goods valued at $25.51, owned by Gerald L. Beauchesne.

On Thursday an action to recover $10,000 for personal injury was brought by Charles Bouchard of Rumford against the City of Auburn. Bouchard was injured by a falling limb which was being removed from an elm tree at the corner of Elm and Main streets in Auburn. Testimony was introduced to the effect that Bouchard suffered a broken leg and two broken ribs and these injuries were followed by a heart and kidney complication. He was at St. Marie's Hospital 13 weeks and now is unable to walk without a cane. A motion for a directed verdict in favor of the defendant was granted by Justice Emery.

Indictments charging R. H. Brann, manager of the Mt. Zircum Bottling Co., with possession of a still, and Mary Thompson with illegal possession were not pressed Thursday. Brann was arrested Aug. 13 after a raid by Sheriff Frothingham on the old Mt. Zircum bottling house when a 500 gallon still, 150 gallons of alcohol, 4,500 gallons of mash, and quantities of brown sugar, yeast, and other ingredients and equipment were found. At the home of Mrs. Thompson were found three and a half tons of brown sugar, two tons of coal, 75 five gallon cans, and a can of alcohol.

The charges of breaking and entering against Joseph Sakalauskis were not pressed. He pleaded guilty to larceny and was sentenced to serve ten months in jail. This was suspended and he was placed on probation for two years.

Fred Leighton was sentenced to not less than one and not more than two years at State prison on the charge of breaking and entering. This sentence was suspended and he was placed on probation. He told the court that he was a World War veteran, enlisting from Massachusetts, and that his real name was Maurice B. Davidson. Justice Emery told Probation Officer Dennis to get in touch with Massachusetts authorities and have him admitted to a soldiers' home there.

William Goyette, who has been in jail since January for contempt of court in not appearing when summoned before the grand jury in November, was discharged.

Henry Breaux, in jail for failure to provide bond in a civil case, was placed on his personal recognizance on $1,000 bail for appearance from term to term.

CORPORATION VOTERS NEED NO POLICEMAN

Small Turnout Monday Evening—Appropriations $200 Under Last Year

Some 50 or 60 citizens assembled Monday evening to settle the destinies of the Bethel Village Corporation for another year. The raising of money generally followed the recommendations of the board of assessors. The only excitement of the evening developed in the article dealing with the night police appropriation, a question which has stirred the community at meetings in past years. After the reading of the article, a motion to pass over the article was made by Fred Clark, and a show of hands carried the motion 17 to 11. A. Van then spoke of the need of a night watchman, but a motion to reconsider the vote was not forthcoming. The percentage to be paid for collecting taxes was fixed at 1 1/2% as in previous years.

ECONOMIC HIGHLIGHTS

Happenings That Affect the Dinner

Bills of Every Individual. National and International Problems Inseparable from Local Welfare.

The best way to appraise any nation's success in recovering from depression is to view it in the light of the experience of other nations which face the same problems and are battling the same depression. During the last few years, the American press has carried scattered and dis-related comment on foreign gains and losses, but, at least so far as the lay reader is concerned, nothing has been issued that gave anywhere near a clear perspective of actual conditions.

Now, in an article in Foreign Affairs, Willard L. Thorp (Chairman, Advisory Council of the NRA, and Professor of Economics at Amherst) has adequately performed that difficult and important task.
As part of a general article on World Recovery, Mr. Thorp has assembled statistics from all the major powers covering the four most important barometers of economic conditions: Industrial Production, Unemployment, Wholesale Prices, and Value of Foreign Trade.

Socially speaking, the unemployment record is the most important.
In this field Mr. Thorp's figures cover the representative period from August, 1932, to August 1934.
They show that Germany had the best luck in putting men back to work—its unemployment declined by 54%, Australia's declined by 39%, the United Kingdom's by 25%, Japan's by 21%, Canada's by 16%, and Italy's by 8%. Three countries —France, Czechoslovakia and Poland—show a rise in unemployment. The United States was at the middle of the list, being under Canada and above Italy, with an unemployment decline of 12%.

When it comes to percentage changes in wholesale prices, the United States leads the rest of the world. From 1932 to a late month, prices in this country advanced 20%—twice as much as in the second country, Japan. England showed a 5% rise, Germany, 4%. A large group of countries, including Poland, France and Italy, showed declines. It is an interesting fact that in many countries, government has attempted to keep prices down while the American Administration has gone to extreme lengths to force them up, believing that the higher prices are essential to business recovery. However, they proved to be a mixed blessing.
You can put prices up, but you can't make people buy. With present trend of Administration policy, it is doubtful if further advances will be registered. There is a better chance that the general index will go down.

The tables on foreign trade show

UP the HILL

by Lawrence Hawthorne

Life is pretty much a struggle up the hill,
And at times the going seems extremely slow.
Difficulties block the path ahead until We don't know just what to do or where to go.
Yes, the way is often hard, but this is true:
We cannot afford to falter or to stop!
And men soon forget the hardships when they view All the glories that await them at the top.

Life is pretty much a struggle up the hill,
But we seldom are compelled to climb alone; There are cheerful hearts and friendly hands that will Help us meet our problems as they meet their own.
So men learn cooperation! So they find That their greatest satisfaction comes when they Render service that is generous and kind—When they help each other on the upward way!

EDITORIAL

have had the best experience, based on a comparison of the third quarter of 1934 with the third quarter of 1932. Our exports rose 51%, and our imports 45%, while England's rose 18% and 4% respectively. Poland, Germany and France showed declines in both phases of foreign trade, while Austria, Australia and Canada showed moderate rises. Japan's exports went up 51% and her imports jumped 122%—a trend which, if continued, will result in a serious international situation inasmuch as she is sending much more money out of the country than she is getting in.

The most representative index of all is industrial production. To make this comparison, Mr. Thorp selected the lowest three months each country had since January, 1932, and related them to a late three-months period. In this comparison, the United States stands exactly in the middle of the list, with a gain from the low point of 30%. Canada is first with 57%, followed in order by Germany, Sweden, Japan and Czechoslovakia and then the U. S. Under us, is the United Kingdom, Poland, Austria, France and Belgium.

There are the figures—and even the most cursory analysis shows that improvement in this country has been little above the average.
We have done more by law to promote recovery than any other comparable nation, but are little farther toward achieving it.

Later business figures than Mr.
Thorp was able to give, indicate continued advances throughout the world, with a few exceptions. At home, business commentators are optimistic—many of them seem to believe that we are due for a slow, but steady improvement that will not be abruptly checked, as have the rises of the past.

Americans who wish to understand the Italy-Abyssinian imbroglio—which is of international importance inasmuch as it complicating the already chaotic European situation—would do well to think of it in the light of the Japan-China issue.

Like China, Abyssinia is an independent power—and like China, it is a hundred years behind the times. Italy, like Japan, is an up-to-date nation which needs new territory. China possesses a wealth of mineral resources, which Japan wants—and Abyssinia possesses a wealth of gold which Italy wants.

A spirit of over-conservatism flared up at the Corporation meeting which doubtless did not reflect the feeling of the majority of the citizens assembled or even that of those who carried the motion to pass over the question of night police in the village. There are few who sincerely believe that an efficient watchman is undesirable or unnecessary. It is quite possible that the deciding votes in the matter lay in the hands of those shadowed by personal prejudice or the fact that their homes were not in a circuit traversed by the watchman.

There is real need of police service during the summer months—as protection against minor misdemeanors and as a courtesy to the traveling public. An efficient watchman the year round might well be the best investment the Corporation could make. The question was raised Monday evening, "What good has the night watchman done?" A prominent citizen in speaking of the remark said, "What good has my fire insurance done?" He had paid premiums many years and had never suffered a fire. A thousand dollars a year for a policeman would be a good insurance against countless comparatively "unimportant" infringements of law and order. This amount is not out of proportion to the amounts spent by the Corporation for fire protection and street lights, both of which are considered as necessary safeguards and conveniences.

WEEK

THE WEEK AT HOME

Washington — Many Americans have willed their estates to Uncle Sam; few, however, as large or under circumstances comparable to the testament of the late Oliver Wendell Holmes, for 29 years a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. After a substantial bequest to a nephew, only surviving near relative, Justice Holmes directed that the major portion of his estate, valued at about $500,- 000, be turned over to the Treasury Department to be used as it sees fit. Estimates indicate the Government will be more than a quarter of a million richer.

Washington — With two sound drubbings administered within a few hours of each other, Huey ("Kingfish") Long spent the week end planning new assaults on his pet aversions: Postmaster General Farley and anyone else with money.
Washington is still speculating on which attack was the more blistering: General Hugh Johnson's (via radio, or the Philippine delivered by Senator Robinson, Administration leader in the Upper House. Neither minced words in dealing with the "Kingfish," and both left the Louisianan's supporters wondering "where Huey would go from here."

Washington—Secretaries of Congressmen have their own organization; Washingtonians call it the "Little Congress." They planned a "Hawaiian Night" in one of the big House caucus rooms, announced hula-hula dances with hips and grass skirts, accompanied by steel-strung guitars. They got the guitars and a perfectly proper lecture on the home life of the Hawaiians. Speaker Joseph W. Byrns drew the line at the hula-hula in Congressional caucus rooms.

ROLLS-ROYCE; ROLLS OF MON- EY

New York—Negro Harlem's eyes bulged when one of its deities, Major J. ("Father") Divine, drew up at court in a swanky Rolls-Royce and later peeled off two $500 bills as bail for himself and his companion, "Faithful Mary," on the charge of running a boarding house without a license. The roll from which the $1,000 came wasn't even dented. The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children charges "Father" Divine with tenacious his hundred lodging houses chiefly with children who are taught that he is God. "So he is," shrilled half a hundred voices from the back of the court room. But the Court failed to agree; set substantial bail. Large-est of the boarding houses is a one-time Turkish bath, with front steps of robin's egg blue. The "Father" steadily refuses to explain the source of the big roll of bills and the bigger Rolls-Royce.

New York — "Some of us are through with war; we'll meet you in prison first." Militant words from the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pacifist pastor of the huge Rockefeller-built Riverside Church in this city. His message, sponsored by 200 other ministers of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, was addressed to "The Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces of the United States," who happens to be Franklin D.
Roosevelt; protested against the vivid demonstration by the Navy in the Pacific from May 3d to June 10th, hailed as the most powerful concentration of warships under a single command in the history of the world. Dr. Fosdick's organization believes it to be an incentive to war.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Secondary in importance only to the retreat from the gold standard is the Treasury's announcement relating all notes issued by National Banks, using for the purpose of $642,000,000 free gold accrued to the Government when the gold dollar was re-valued. Economists have frequently asked how the Treasury intended to use this huge fund; they now have the answer.
This measure automatically reduces the national debt $675,000,000 by calling for redemption that amount of Consols and Panama Canal bonds pledged by National Banks as security for currency issues. The move saves the Treasury $12, 000 in annual interest charges; the Government's free gold to to that extent, and leaves United States Notes, Treasury Certificates and Federal Reserve Notes in circulation. ers believe this ends for the being any danger of inflation; simplifies the nation's currency.

BRIGHT STEEL OUTLOOK

Country's two greatest commodities released their 1934 financial reports this week. Chairman of corporate—Myron C. Taylor United States Steel, and Char-Schwab, of Bethlehem—expressed optimistic views on the strength of their companies. U. S. Steel reported a deficit by $14,833,441 increased its employees 17,304, grand total of 189,881, boosted annual earnings per hour 10 cents, a gain of 15% in favor of workers. Bethlehem reported net income of $550,751 against 1933 loss of $8,735,723. The corporation increased its number of workers by 10,000, and they an average of 67 cents per hour, a gain of 20% over the year previous. The two reports had a muting effect on business generally.

THE WEEK ABROAD

Trouble spots seem to develop daily in Europe; another nearer home, Havana, Cuba, long-drawn-out battle between affected Cuban workers and student groups, and a harrowing Administration, brought the of machine-gun fire in Ha-vanna to quell a general strike which tied up all transport plunged the city in darkness electric company employees v out. Spreading over the strikes threaten sugar production. Paralysis of railway communication is the aim of strike leaders. Athens—Loyalist Greek still at grips with strong Republican forces at many points the Republic. The rebels occupied many strong positions the of which will entail heavy of life on both sides.

Budapest—Hungary moved nearer the distribution of estates often promised by Gombocz as a bid for peasant support. One by one, aristocrats been dropped from power. week the Hungarian Parliaments dissolved and new ordered by Admiral Nicholas thy, Regent of Hungary. In meantime, 1,500 aristocrats control 4,700,000 acres from nearly 5,000,000 peasants deprived of land. Peasants want a spread of ownership, are looking to the Premier to keep his promise.

Figures, the kind that you and not the kind that you see —are apt to be more or less interesting. Here, however, are that I think will refute this rule if for no other reason that they hit most of us where live—in the pocketbook.

These figures were compiled by the Planning Board from of the survey conducted years ago by the Maine omment commission. They the taxes paid over a towns in Maine that are traceable to the recreational try, and, as far as I know, never been published previously. The following are selected the list at random; the percentage being the percentage total amount of taxes paid towns which are credited recreational sources.

Action 31%, Bar Harbor Belgrade 41%, Blue Hill 46%, den 27%, Castine 36%, 76%, Falmouth 39%, Free-27%, Georgetown 85%, 51%, Harrington 12%, 30%, Kennebunkport 73%, moine 44%, Monhegan 70%, field 13%, North Haven 77%, port 65%, Orland 16%, 12%, Otis 35%, Portage Lake Rangely 50%, Roque Bluffs Sebect 13%, Searsport 13%, rento 94%, Sullivan 33%, 31%, Winter Harbor 83%.

From the foregoing par-it can be seen that a num-towns are doing right themselves by catering to recreational trade—which is itself one of the major ind-

Squad 23—Rumford

In the final game of the local season, the "B" team defeated the rugged Independent Rumford Point. The Goals went right to work after winning whistle and piled up comfortable 15-3 lead, which they were content to hold during the rest of the game. The summary:

Declarations were given last week by the following: Esther Wheeler, Persis Adams, Charles Anderson, Sylvia Merrill, Yvonne Marshall, Muriel Brinck, Marian Clark, Jane Linton, Marjorie Perry, Alonzo Chapman, Ruby Jodis, Elizabeth Beane, Helen Anderson, Dale Thurston, Roberta Browne.

The Girl Reserves held their second vocational meeting on Wednesday, March 13. The meeting was held by the group singing their national song, followed by a Bible reading and prayer. Rosalind Rowe entertained by playing a piano solo. Then the girls were given the assurance of hearing Mrs. R. R. Tibbels talk on "Nursing," as a Profession. She outlined the work and duties of training, and ended by telling of the different branches of nursing in which one could specialize. Her talk was very interesting and appreciated by all. This program was conducted by Frances Merrill. The club will conclude its national meetings next week with Miss Sally Chapman talking "Business Opportunities."

EAST BETHEL

The ladies' Farm Bureau met at the home of Mrs. Howe Thursday. Miss Callaghan, H. D. A., was the speaker. Nineteen women learned about "Raising and Preserving Food at Home," and how much of different kinds of food their families should have during a year. Mrs. Sadie Knights was elected as Secretary in place of Mrs. Swan who resigned. The next two meetings are changed around and "Clothing Accessories" will be the subject of the meeting April 17. Robert Hastings was in Portland again Friday. He was accompanied by B. W. Kimball, who was on his way to Boston to visit his daughter, Mrs. O. W. Fales.

Miss Agnes Howe went to Portland Saturday to meet Miss Ella Burns of Providence, R. I., who is visiting her mother, Mrs. Newton for a week.

The 4-H Club whist party netted the club $1.66. Mrs. Nevens and Lawrence Kimball won highest honors and Mary Farwell and Rodney Howe the consolation prizes. Another will be held next week as the girls' club wants to give one dollar toward sending an Oxford County girl to National 4-H Club at Washington, D. C., this summer. They also want to earn money to buy material for their sewing and with only five members it means a lot of work for each one. The next party is a Poverty party. Wear your oldest clothes, or pay a fine. Miss Minnie Pawa was a week end guest of Mrs. Maggie Newton. Mrs. Newton's sister and family and mother were Sunday guests.

The weather and roads have combined to make good sliding and nearly every early evening found sliding parties in evidence on the hills last week. Mrs. Birchard Russell and son Cedric were Sunday visitors of her father, Porter Farwell. Raymond Bartlett was home from his work over Sunday. Mrs. Ceylon Kimball's father passed away Sunday at his home in South Paris.

He left me for a damsel dark, damsel dark, Each Friday night they used to spark, used to spark, And now my love once true to me, Takes that dark damsel on his knee.—Chorus.

Oh dig my grave both wide and deep, wide and deep. Put tombstones on my head and feet, head and feet, And on my breast carve a turtle dove, To signify I died of love.—Chorus.

To Our Readers—If there is an old song or poem which you cannot find and would like to see in print, write the Citizen. If we are unable to locate it possibly another reader can furnish it for publication.

THE SONG MY MOTHER USED TO SING

Selected by D. S. Brooks in loving tribute to his sainted mother I dreamt of scenes in days of yore, When I from pain and care was free; I saw my mother's face once more,
It beamed with joy to welcome me; I saw her as she used to sit,
While childish glee around did ring,
And softly, sweetly as she knit,
She sang the song she used to sing.

CHORUS

I think of dear and sainted mother, Everywhere I roam;
I fancy that I hear her singing
"Far from the Old Folks at Home."

I saw the playground where the boys So joyous, gay and free from care, Would sport around with merry noise, While I in every sport did share; I skipped across the emerald lea,
And plucked the flowers of early Spring, But dearer far than all to me,
The song my mother used to sing.

THERE IS A TAVERN IN THE TOWN

There is a tavern in the town, in the town,
And there my dear love sits him down,
And sits him down,
And drinks his wine mid laughter free,
And never, never thinks of me.

CHORUS

Fare thee well for I must leave thee, Do not let this parting grieve thee,
And remember that the best of friends must part, must part, Adieu, adieu, kind friends adieu, adieu adieu,
I can no longer stay with you, stay with you,
I'll hang my harp on a weeping willow tree,
And may the world go well with thee.

THE STORY

PETER I.—Theodore Gatlin decided to adopt a baby in a final effort to solve his matrimonial troubles. All his love for his foster-son could not shelter her from the hatred of his wife who had never wanted her. The divorce was granted and the ten-year-old Penelope was sent to the care of Mrs. Gatlin for two Sunday afternoons. On their first day they set out joyfully to the beach. A ball, hit into the water, struck Penelope on the head and the neurotic Mrs. Gatlin moved her from the hospital bed to her former husband's home. Mrs. Gatlin retired to Europe. Penelope, all alone, was about to begin her life for his daughter when an accident ended his life.

PETER II.—Some ten years later, San Francisco, Stephen Burt, a young psychiatrist, was called by Dan McNamara, chief of a girl whose terrible childhood left her with a dual personality for which her "saddle nose" was responsible. McNamara thought she was a responsible girl and obtained Burt's examination in court. Even Lanny, the doctor's faithful office boy, was won over to her cause and she won her freedom from her hard-boiled exterior.

PETER III.—Nance's criminal outwitted Doctor Burt's explanation of her case and sent her to San Quentin prison for two years. Lanny visited and Nance persuaded her to write a letter which she stole from her handbag in the prison walls.

CHAPTER IV

LIVED at the little bungalow occupied in St. Francis Lanny put her car in the garage and entered her home, and sat to read Nance Belden's letter when she failed to find it. Some of the logical thinking which she was so eminently good at in situations where her were not being preyed work," she decided finally. I picked up on the road and stole it out of my car when I got out to look at it. She must have visited before I got there. She was of the sort of damsel, too, now of it. An underworld hussy; double, too, known to me. So Nance had no opportunity to slip her the letter. The watched too closely. Nance that would be the case, so an alternative plan. What a judge of human nature!

She knew she could me, and oh, what a fool I permit it! Why, I'm as law-abiding as only I'm a responsible of society and she isn't. I wouldn't fail to visit the described me to her confidante, who spotted me when I went to the main gate and my car.

The confederate saw me back she drove a nail about into my rear tire—simple as two are four. The nail ran all the way in and the tire before we'd gone a mile. Dear, dear, what a simple! I suppose I ought to do about this, but then if I can I explain my conduct to the officials?

They thoroughly now the which she had been an accomplice before the fact. That sly thing she could read the fore mailing it; that if she approve of its contents she to destroy it. That was upon which the susceptible had impaled herself.

It can't be anything so very," she decided finally. "It part of a plan to escape, escape from that place is. Besides, no woman ever succeeded in escaping from San Quentin. In all probability it was just a private message to one of her old underworld friends. That girl is too intelligent to dream of formulating plans for escape. Why, she couldn't get out of the front gate. She'd have to swim the bay to escape, even if she succeeded in getting through the exit from the woman's quarters and past that suspicious guard in the little house there."

So Lanny made herself a highball and resolved to dismiss all thought of the incident. She also resolved to give Nance Belden a piece of her mind if and when she decided to visit her again. And she was not at all certain she would make Nance another visit.

Two weeks later, while she was sitting before the fire, reading, her telephone rang and a man's voice said:

"Is this Miss Rebecca Lanning?"

"Yes. Who is this?"

"Never mind. You wouldn't know me if I told you who I am. I'm a friend of Nance Belden's. Are you going to be at home for an hour. Miss Lanning?" the voice pursued.

It was a pleasant enough voice, Lanny reflected.

"I am, but what business is that of yours?"

"Oh, well, if you're going to be such a cutup," the voice rejoined, "I'll not bother to argue that with you over the phone. I'll come out. Good-by."

He hung up, leaving Lanny in a state of acute mental perturbation, which did not subside until she heard her doorbell ringing some ten minutes later. It subsided then. Her courage always mounted when there was an immediate situation to face. "Nance Belden's friend," she decided instantly.

For a moment she considered telephoning Dan McNamara, then decided the worthy fellow might prove an embarrassment. So she got a pistol from her bureau drawer—because she was a practical soul and dwelt alone. She had purchased the pistol as a precaution—and went to the door. She cocked the pistol and took a long breath, threw open the door suddenly and raised her weapon.

"Put 'em up," she commanded harshly.

"Don't be silly, Lanny, dear," a soft voice entreated her wearily. "It's only me."

"Nancy Belden—your little devil," Lanny almost shouted. "Come in here this instant."

Nance Belden reeled in and Lanny closed the door behind her, turned the bolt, switched on the hall light—and screamed.

"Pipe down," Nance commanded, in that queer, faint, weary voice. "I'm not a corpse, but I'll tell the world I came mighty close to being one just before lock-up time this afternoon. Lanny, dear, I crashed the gate."

"Well, you'll crash out of here in a split second, you little hellion," Lanny cried sharply. "Get as a disrag and your hair like a witch's, and covered with blood. Where are you hurt?"

"Bullet through my left arm, high up near the shoulder. That guard could shoot, and he did! If my boy friend hadn't shot back at him and made him hunt his hole I'd be ash-bait this minute."

"You've got to get out of here, Nance," Lanny was terrified. "How many visitors have you had since you've been in San Quentin?"

"Just you, Lanny."

"The authorities will look me up and they'll come here. Understand? They'll come here—there, they're on the telephone now. Oh, my good lord, what have I done to deserve this?"

She dashed into the kitchen and took down the telephone receiver. And again a masculine voice said:

"Miss Rebecca Lanning?"

Lanny controlled herself. "Yes," she said calmly. "Who's speaking?"

"Dan McNamara."

"Oh, hello, Dan. How are you?"

"Fine, Lanny. How's yourself?"

"Well, I might be dead for all the interest you've taken in me since you swallowed that good highball you grafted off me the day you came to Doctor Burt's office with that Nance 'Belden girl.' She added archly—"you egg!"

Dan McNamara laughed. "Can I come out now?"

"The very idea. Of course not. It's almost ten o'clock and I'm just about to retire!"

"This is business, Lanny. I've got to see you at once."

"I didn't know the police were after me."

"The police aren't, but the chief is. Lanny, that Nance Belden escaped from San Quentin late this afternoon. She got to San Francisco all right. We know that because we found the speed-boat she crossed the bay in tied up in the yacht harbor at Marina. There was blood all over the cockpit and bullet holes in the hull."

"All of which proves, Dan, that God's in his heaven, and all's well with the world. Are you seriously trying to recover the girl and send her back to the penitentiary?"

"I'm not. I'd give two of my big buck teeth to see her make a clean getaway. You know that. But the warden—naturally. It seems you visited Nance two weeks ago and smuggled a letter out for her and mailed it."

"Dan, I give you my word of honor I neither mailed a letter for her nor passed it to somebody else to mail. Nor did the girl discuss with me any plans for escape. If she had I would have told the warden, in order to prevent her escape. It wouldn't have been kind not to do so. The girl is mentally irresponsible and it would have occurred to me that, in any mad attempt to escape, a guard might shoot at her."

"Well, a guard did, and he hit her, too. But he didn't stop her. Her outside gang opened on him with a Tommy gun from a speed-boat off the point, and made him hunt his hole. Nance swam out to the boat under cover of their protective fire; they hauled her in and beat it forty-five miles an hour across San Quentin bay and headed up toward Carquinez straits, while daylight lasted. After dark they doused their lights and sneaked back. The warden telephoned Central office here and gave the alarm. I wasn't on hand, but of course the captain on duty had the water front covered at once. He had two men at the St. Francis Yacht club and they saw a speed-boat sneak in and across the little harbor to a vacant berth on the Marina slide. Before the cops could hurry across the people in the boat jumped out and to a waiting car. The cops followed in a police car as soon as they could. But one of Nance's friends riddled their front tires with machine-gun bullets and the trail was lost."

"How exciting, Dan!"

"Yes, and it will be more exciting for you, Lanny. I got home about two minutes ago, and my phone was ringing. It was central office trying to report to me. They're just starting a couple of dicks out in a cruiser to watch and see if Nance tries to make your house. You're a trained nurse. The warden's found out that much—matter of looking you up in the San Francisco directory. So he thinks that she'll head for your house to receive medical attention. And you must be a friend of hers—otherwise why did you call upon her?"

"Dan," said Lanny desperately, "she's here now!"

"Into your car with her, Lanny, and beat it out to my house with her." He gave his address. "That's the last place on earth the devil himself would hunt for an escaped convict."

"I've just heard a thump and a crash in my living room, Dan. I think she's fainted. Telephone Doctor Burt to come to your home—that he will have to probe a bullet wound and dress it. Tell him to bring some whisky and two or three hot-water bags, and be on hand yourself to let me in. I can't leave here until I've mopped up any bloodstains she may have left on the sidewalk and my front steps. Good-by."

Lanny was right. Nance Belden lay on the floor of the living room in a faint. She picked the girl up in her strong arms and carried her down a short flight of stairs that led from her kitchen to the garage below. She heaved her into the car, ran back upstairs, got a wet mop, and by the light of the electric lamp over the front entrance searched for drops of blood. She found a few and followed them to the sidewalk, eradicating them with vigorous sweeps of the mop, then dashed back into the house, jammed on her hat and coat, ran outside again, threw open the garage door and backed her car out. She paused again, to shut it, then swung up the street as the half-red lamps of a police cruising car turned the corner. She swung wide to give it a clear berth, turned the first corner and spurred. She followed a zig-zag course until she felt sure she had thrown the police car off her trail—provided they had become suspicious and started to follow her; she turned up a residence street that she felt reasonably certain would not be patrolled by traffic officers at that hour of the night and speeded up.

Dan McNamara was standing on the sidewalk in front of his house when she drew up. He reached into her car, lifted Nance Belden out and ran with her down an alley alongside the house to the basement entrance, which he kicked open. Lanny followed. Up the stairs to the kitchen and on to a rear bedroom. Lanny jerked a small rug off the floor and threw it on the bed. "Let her bleed on that for a while," she commanded. "No sense in messing this nice clean bed all up. There must be blood in my car, Dan. Take a wet towel and go out and clean it thoroughly, please, while I'm undressing this poor lamb. Get me one of your wife's clean nightgowns."

"Ain't got no wife, Lanny. Use one of mine."

"Just as good as any. Get it. Who takes care of you here?"

"My mother."

"Can she be trusted?"

"I've sent her to the country for a month," he evaded. "I'm sleeping here and eating downtown."

"God bless our home, Dan. Clear out—and watch for Stevie and let him in."

She ran to the kitchen, turned on the hot water and set an enameled skillet under the faucet; then returned, undressed the girl. In an adjoining bathroom she found clean towels and placed a cold one on her head. When she returned to the kitchen, the enameled skillet was sitting in the midst of a cloud of steam, so she knew it had been thoroughly disinfected; she filled it with warm water, carried it into the room and with a wet towel mopped the two holes in Nance's arm and examined the wound.

"Missed the bone," she decided. "Bled like a stuck pig, of course, piece of her dress probably carried into the wound."

In the medicine closet, Lanny discovered a small bottle of iodine. So she doused the wound with it, wrapped a cold towel around the girl's shoulder and tucked her into bed.

She found a comb and brush in Dan McNamara's bureau and combed and smoothed the dank, straggly black bob, and when that was done she unbent long enough to implant a kiss on the white brow.

"Poor lamb!" she murmured. "Nobody's poor lost darling!"

The girl's eyelids flickered.

"Is that you, Lanny?" the girl murmured faintly.

"Yes, dearie. And you're all right, so don't worry. Nobody's going to take you back to San Quentin."

"The cops chased us at the boat landing, Lanny. Are you sure we shook them off?"

"Of course you did—the big bucks! Now, listen dearie. I'm going to tell you something, but don't let it disturb you. Take my word for it you're safe. Do you remember Dan McNamara, the chief of police?"

"Of course. Old Daniel's my boy friend."

"Well, you're in his bed. The cops were on your trail, dearie. They suspected you might come to my house, so Dan tipped me off they were coming and to beat it with you out to his house."

Terror shone in the girl's dark eyes. "I'd never trust a cop that far," she wailed. "Oh, Lanny, you've let him make a sucker out of you." She began to weep hysterically.

"If you don't stop that," Lanny promised "I'll bat you over the head with this skillet," and she picked that homely utensil up and shook it at Nance. "Dan McNamara's your friend."

"Yes, and the chief of police, too. Lanny, I'll die if they take me back. They'll put me in the dungeon—I'm afraid of the dark."

"Shut up. You're not afraid of anything. You've got your little red badge of courage, you scaramouche! You afraid? My foot! Didn't you crash the gate and swim for that speedboat under fire?"

"Machine-gun fire, at that," Dan McNamara supplemented, from the doorway. "They opened on her and the boat from the towers." He came to the side of the bed and grinned down at the terrified girl. "Don't you worry, Nance. You're safe. I'm a cop, but I'm not without some sporting blood—your getaway earns three rousing cheers from old Dan McNamara." His big hand strayed over her face.

"You're a good old hunk of cheese," she assured him.

To be continued next week.

SOUTH WOODSTOCK

March 11. Rather warmer than yesterday. A cold heavy fog is drifting in. Looks much like rain this morning.

Miss Viole Gammon has gone to Bird Hill to assist her sister, Mrs. Alice Ring, with the care of the children of Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Roberts during their recent bad colds and illness resulting therefrom.

Three trucks and a crew of nine men from this town were engaged in sanding the black road all day March 6.

Mrs. Ernest Crocker, who was taken to the Community Hospital, Rumford, by Dr. Kay last week, is not as well and a second operation will be performed as soon as advisable.

Mrs. James Kennebec of Curtis Hill has been taken to the hospital near Boston where she will receive a course of treatment. Mrs. Kennebec only a short time ago was in a hospital in Lewiston, but coming home her condition became more serious.

Little Ethel May Davis, who put her hand in the rapidly moving wringer of the electric washer, has had a very hard time. The arm which was so badly squeezed has been swollen and after a week's time the arm burst open, discharging a bloody watery mass which had caused the child to suffer terribly though being daily attended by the family physician.

We are so glad to know that Alta Hendrickson, who for a long time had been confined to her room through illness following a serious operation, is now able to be up and with the family once more.

Minnie Stevens, who has been very ill, has been placed under special treatment by Dr. Hall of Springfield. She is now wearing a steel harness for curvature of the spine and at this writing is getting much relief from pain.

Of course before now you have heard of the terrible accident which came near to being fatal for two well known ladies of South Woodstock and Sumner. A party on their way to Augusta; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Chandler of Sumner, and Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Perham and Quimby Perham of this town, were in a terrible accident on Fore Street, Paris. Mrs. Chandler sustained severe injuries to her back with ribs broken besides head bruises, while Mrs. Perham (Florence Eastman Perham, R. N.) received fractures of the pelvic bones and other serious injuries. The cases were X-rayed and Mrs. Chandler was taken to Mrs. Emory's Maternity Home at West Paris. Mrs. Perham requested she be taken to her home here, Dr. Kay being in attendance, with Mrs. Emma Perham, our local nurse of high recommendation, taking the case in charge. Florence has stood the trying ordeal with great fortitude, and after three days and nights of terrible suffering seems to be feeling more comfortable. Thoughts of love and sympathy go out to Florence, for there are few homes where she has not herself administered to the sick and suffering.

Dick Carter, the "Great Sprucer," and his dog, Richard Stevens, returned from Cedar Brook Camp No. 2, last Tuesday, because of an injury to one of Dick's horses. However, ambitious men like these were unable to enjoy a lay off, so now working at Hastings' Camp No. 1.

Steve Abbott was in Rumford last week on the jury of the Oxford County Superior Court. He reported many interesting cases, however, we have no further details as the proceedings were secret.

Ronald Stevens and Willis Ward spent last Sunday ice fishing at Schago Lake. No tall stories have been told as yet regarding this trip, the sportsmen only claiming a reasonable catch.

Ernest Buck's venerable horse, "Bonnie," was injured on Mt. Waterapout while trying to supply the before-mentioned "hacksaw artists" with aprons. Dr. Greenleaf attended and reported that it would be fully recovered in two weeks.

A handsome, homeless cat has been discovered. Any charitable person wishing affectionate feline companionship will receive such by calling at the homestead of Charles C. Eames.

Following a suggestion from one of the members of the local Farm Bureau, we are reporting the delicious menus served at these meetings for the benefit of those who are unable to attend. The last dinner was served by Mrs. Grace Buck. It consisted of delectable meat loaf, baked potatoes with cream gravy, buttered carrots and nut bread. This was followed by a tempting dessert of lemon jello, apple cookies and coffee.

Mrs. Beatrice Kimball was the dinner guest of Mrs. Stevens on Monday. Her husband arrived later after which several games of Rook were enjoyed.

V-8 POWER

COMFORT ZONE RIDING

Ford Economy

YOU have heard a lot about the new Comfort Zone Ride of the Ford V-8 for 1935. Its reception has already shown it to be an improvement that automobile-driving America needed.

But, you get a lot more than riding comfort with the new Ford V-8. This car was conceived to meet every motoring need.

The V-8 engine—proved in use by more than a million motorists—gives you the power and performance necessary to satisfy the first of these. This means more high speed. It means reserves of power to improve and ease every-day driving. And it means the utmost in operating and upkeep economy.

You may want roominess. The new Ford V-8 meets this requirement. It is wide, long—with plenty of space for luggage behind the rear seat.

You may want style. Here is streamlined beauty in the finest sense of the term—and the interior upholstery and appointments that are little short of luxurious.

The new Ford V-8 brings you improvements that make driving a new pleasure—a clutch that enables you to start or shift gears almost without effort—brakes that respond to a light touch of the pedal. You also get safety glass all around at no extra cost.

Name what you'd want if price were no consideration. Then see the new Ford V-8. You'll agree it gives you everything—as it was built to do!
